1. Thirty women wearing Soviet officer uniforms with tank insignia left the settlement at Roebelin Lake, Fuerstenberg (E 54/U 62), on 6 September 1950. (1)
2. The sentry in front of the Broegen Kaserne wore red-bordered black epauletts. The installation appeared to be almost unoccupied. Three canvas-covered tanks were parked in the barracks yard. About 30 officers practiced with bayonets
3. A repair shop on Zehdenicker Strasse at Baalen Lake was referred to by local residents as a tank repair shop. A sign over the gate read "Deutsche Faserstoffwerke" (German fibre plant). Prior to 1945 this installation was used as an ammunition depot. Two T-34 tanks left the shop on 14 September 1950.
4. A small factory on Ravensbruecker Strasse, the road from Lychen, was also used by the Soviets. The sentries wore tank insignia.
